WOODNESBOROUGH, a parish and village, deriving its name from Woden, is on a Roman road, at the foot of a spur of a chain of hills which command an extensive view of the surrounding country; it has a station on the East Kent Railway and is a mile and a half south-west from Sandwich station, on the Dover and Margate section of the Southern railway, in the Dover division of the county, lower half hundred and rural district of Eastry, lathe of St. Augustine, petty sessional division of Wingham, county court district of Deal, rural deanery of Sandwich and archdeaconry and diocese of Canterbury. The waterworks of the Sandwich Corporation are in this parish, and include a reservoir with a capacity of over 150,000 gallons. Gas and electricity are available. Water is supplied by the East Kent District Water Co. The ancient church of St. Mary the Virgin, dating from 1180, is of stone in the Early English and Perpendicular styles, and has a tower containing 5 bells: in the chancel are two brasses; there is also a 14th century sedilia: the church was partially restored in 1884, but the work was completed in 1909, and it has 258 sittings. In the churchyard is a sun-dial dated 1738, and a granite monument, erected in 1920, to the memory of the men of the parish who fell in the Great War, 1914-18. The register dates from the year 1561.
